A Colorful History. The City of Flora, located in the heart of Southern Illinois, was established in 1854 when the town was first laid out, surveyed and plotted. Flora is said to have been named for the daughter of one of the founders of the City, as well as for the many wild flowers that grew in great abundance on the town site. There is no question that Flora owes much of its early growth to the advent of several railroads through Clay County and the community.
